"Hips" are formed at the base of flowers and are actually the fruit of the rose. (Our Rosehips are only sold for decorative purposes.)

HISTORY: In ancient times Rosehips were used to treat rabid dog bites. Native Americans used them for muscle cramps. Rosehips are a classic of Victorian floral arrangements. During World War II while it was difficult to import citrus fruits, the English gathered wild-grown rosehips and made a vitamin C syrup for children.

FARM FRESH: Rosehips are grown in an inland mountain canyon where the micro-climate provides Sun Valley a prime location to specialize in Rosehips and other specialty branches with large, healthy "berries" and ultimately, better lasting quality.

COLOR: Rosehips are harvested when lime green early-season, glowing green with a pink blush mid-season, and range from orange to red to dark burgundy late-season.

LASTING: Rosehips will stay vibrant and plump for several weeks in an arrangement. Dried Rosehips also make a beautiful display.

LENGTH: Branches of tall, sturdy stems. Premium: 32", Super: 24" to 28"

DISPLAY: Punctuate arrangements with Rosehips, a brilliant seasonal offering with liberally berried branches. Add great textural contrast, volume and an artful dimension. Utilize Rosehips for a botanical, outdoorsy bouquet. Green Rosehips are popular in European style arrangements.

CARE & HANDLING: Handle carefully as Rosehip stems are prickly. Upon arrival cut stems and place into a clean container with fresh, tepid water. No fresh flower food solution is necessary.
